This is a good suggestion.  I like the balance it presents to a more efficient system, but still providing a continuation of Morse code and necessary testing to provide an ample pool of qualified amateurs for conducting radio communication services.  A variety of narrow band modes and the band space to accommodate them is most necessary.